A LUTA CONTINUA!

Strengthening or weakening health systems? Public side event to the World Health Assembly

Saturday 23 May 2015, 12:30–14:30 at the Red Cross Museum

Since achieving independence in 1975, Mozambique is a country in constant change. In this context, governments, foundations, NGOs and companies declare noble intentions in order to improve the precarious health situation of the population. The documentary 'A Luta Continua' reviews the achievements, challenges and difficulties in order to build a health system for all in an increasingly unequal country where, sometimes, aid strategies do not always walk in the same direction.

Based on the documentary produced by Medicus Mundi Catalunya and referring to the case of Mozambique, the side event to the World Health Assembly organized by the Medicus Mundi International Network will provide an opportunity for the dialogue on what it takes to strengthen – or weaken – a national health system, with a particular look at the role of international health cooperation.

This event is open for WHA delegates and other participants. Your registration at the MMI secretariat is welcome, but not mandatory.
